The cooperation between Minority Records and Amanita Design goes on! This time by releasing Botanicula Soundtrack. Botanicula is point'n'click exploration game created by Jaromír Plachý and Amanita Design. It's about a bunch of five friends - little tree creatures who set out for a journey to save the last seed from their home tree which is infested by evil parasites. The original soundtrack and sound effects are created by Czech alternative duo DVA.

DVA released their debut album Fonók (Indies Scope Records, 2008), that gained attention of music critics abroad. BBC's front music critic, Charlie Gillett, ranked this album among the best albums of 2009, Fonók which contains fourteen compositions reached #34 in the respected WCME charts. In 2010 the duo released successor of Fonók, named HU (Indies Scope Records, 2010) supported intensely by touring Germany, Austria, Italy, Spain, France, Poland, Norway, Ukraine, Russia, Réunion. In March 2012 DVA played live at SXSW festival in Texas and in addition to this, won the 14th annual awards in "Excellence in Audio" at Independent Games Festival for soundtrack to computer game Botanicula.

"If Sigur Ros were peppy and wide-eyed, their music might turn out like the involved, exuberant tunes Dva created. Dva's melodic and compositional skill were top-shelf; the tunes they cranked out were brilliant and moving. If you're into post-rock, post-pop, composition, looping, or really unique tunes, you need to check out Dva; their set is in the running for "best of fest" already. " (Stephen Carradini on DVA's set at SXSW 2012)

Botanicula Soundtrack is released on 12" LP in edition of 1000 copies, whilst 300 copies are on turquoise vinyl, 300 copies on amber vinyl and 400 copies on standard black. Each copy features three large format inserts [30x30 cm] with art reproductions by Jaromír Plachý, author of the game artwork, and as always, a coupon with a code to download MP3/FLAC versions of the album.
